OPENING OF THE GERMAN PARLIAMENT. Berlin, February 24 .- The Parliament of the North German States formally opened yesterday. The King of Prussia, the members of the royal family and Count BISMARCK, were present. The King said that he was encircled as no German Prince had been for ages; all hopes for the future welfare of the nation now rested on the accomplished fact of a united Germany. He recommended Parliament to form a new constitutional union which would be defensive in character, and give unity, liberty and power to the fatherland.

FLORENCE, February 24.—A telegram from Naples reports that a magazine of gunpowder exploded at Ponilippo near that city. A number of lives were lost.

WASHINGTON, February 24.—Coopen's minority South Carolina Murder Report says that it is true that Generals THOMAS, SICKLES, WOOD and BAIRD, in testimony state that the courts do not administer full and impartial justice where Union men, soldiers and freedmen are litigants, and that they are not safe; but in answer to a direct question, they furnish but one in Tennsssee; one in Mississippi, at Grenada; one in Louisiana; none in Virginia, except Watson, and none in North Carolina, Florida, Georgia, or Alabama. All testify explicitly that they have no fault to find with the Governors of the respective States, or the high officials, Judges of the Supreme Courts, or intelligent, wellinformed citizens. General Schoffeld testifies that negroes arraigned for crime are dealt with leniently rather than harshly. The general feeling of the respectable people of Virginia is pity for the freedmen. The report takes strong ground against the policy and constitutionality of the proposed military governments.

Depression in Trade at the North-The Radical Physic Working. The Commercial and Financial Chronicle, of New York, the highest authority on the subject, says, in its issue of last Saturday : Complaints are universal of the siagnation and Complaints are universal of the signation and the unprofitableness of business. A spring season so depressed and generally unsatisfactory as the present is hardly within the memory of our city merchants. The trade of the interior is generally reported dull and unpromising. Although the South has realized upon a large portion of its cotton crop, it is found devoid of trading spirit, and even unable to liquidate much of its indebtedness on account of last year's purchases. In the Western States merchants complain of unusual difficulty in making their collections, and have on hand a heavy balance of fall stock; the result being that their obligations to the Atlantic cities, in many their obligations to the Atlantic cities, in many cases, have to be renewed for thirty to sixty days. The New England cotton mills find the demand for goods so limited, compared with their production, that at the beginning of this month some of the manufacturers made a still further curtail ment of their time of running. The woollen trade, now one of our most extensive industries, although it recently diminished its aggregate production probably quite 20 per cent., finds little relief from ed supply of goods, and manufacturers have to sell a large amount of their products at a discount from cost. In the leather and iron trades similar complaints prevail; and, indeed, it would be difficult to find an important exception to the

The Chronicie considers at length the causes producing this general and almost unprecedented disturbance and depression of business, and finds its principal source in the unstatesmanlike and unpatriotic course of Congress. The conclusion is undoubtedly correct; and we are amazed that the powerful commercial classes of the North are so slow in perceiving the fatal consequences to themselves of the present political discontents and uncertainties—and applying the proper remedy. Well may the Chronicle say, "The present demoralized

tant prices. In some instances these pursons write for the Northern papers, and as it is for their inter-est to have the South dominated by a military force, they will, of course, paint horrible pictures of the subdued rebels. In one instance that came to my subdued rebels. In one instance that came to my knowledge, a trader had sold a breastpin to a negro for $5 which was made in Waterbury, Connecticut, for sixteen cents, and this man was the correspondent of the Chicago Tribune, a leading Radical paper in the North. I am thoroughly convinced that Congress, while prompted to many acts by an honest indignation, is terribly misled by statements of interested parties. The constant

Modern Refuelicanism.—A firm in Nashville, one of the largest and most respectable mercantile houses in the West, paying annually many thousand dollars of taxes, has, including clerks, six persons employed in the concern, besides the porter, who is a negro. The latter now is the only one of the whole concern who is allowed to vote under the present Brownlow Constitution. The point of the joke is that the negro was the bitter-est rebel of all, and was an officer's servant in the late rebel or all, and was an officer's servant in the late rebel army, and, when fighting by his master's side, he was the third man over the ramparts of Fort Pillow, where he fell like an avenging thunderbolt upon the negroes, who so gallantly surrendered that stronghold.

complaint of the Southern people is, that they are cruelly misrepresented; that while in their ruin and desolation they earnestly desire the restora-tion of friendly relations with the Government, they are accused most unjustly of numberless out-rages and wrongs.

The above, which we take from the New York Times, furnishes an illustration of the recent Act of the Tennessee Legislature on the subject of Wheat was sown throughout the country to a larger extent than in any previous year. In the moist and warm ground it germinated and sprouted within four or five days, and continued growing until the frosts of the latter part of November, when it showed a robust stand, such as has not been seen for many a fall. The thick coat of snow (also grumbled at as a matter of ourse) now covering the ground, is another blessing. That snow shelters our wheat as under a universal hot-house, shelters our wheat as under a universal hot-house, and a good one, too, keeping the plant alive, but not allowing its growth, which is its best possible

FROM WASHINGTON.

[Special Correspondence of the Baltimore Gazette.] WASHINGTON, February 21-Last night Congress consummated their miscalled "reconstruction" scheme, the features of which you have already given to the public. Its very title is a misnomer. t should have been called an Act to destroy rather than to rebuild. Its effect must be to separatenot unite. As the vulgar but expressive adage goes, "it is hard to extract blood from a turnip." But as infamous as the SHERMAN proposition, with the House amendments, is, I find some crumbs of comfort in the measure and its surroundings as it passed, not the least, perhaps, of which is that its authors have overleaped themselves and may fall on the other side.

In the first place, if the Southern people shall choose to accept the alternative of abiding under military rule until a change of public sentiment shall have been developed at the North, the whole scheme falls to the ground—a monstrous abortion! Secondly, the Senate, by its unanimous Radical vote on the Sherman proposition as it originally passed that body, solemnly declared in favor of the enfranchisement of every man implicated in the civil war on the Southern side, thus endorsing the manly course adopted by your Legislature, and pointedly condemning that shamelessly pursued by Tennessee and Missouri. Thirdly, the diabolical slanders and falseboods for the past two years beared upon the South must row cases since such cal slanders and falsehoods for the past two years heaped upon the South must now cease, since such blows will otherwise fall upon the heads of Grant and his subordinates, who will hereafter be responsible for the "disorders," the "outrages," the "wholesale murders" lyingly alleged to exist and to be committed there, and not on the heads of innocent people of that section. Besides, the South has been accustomed to martial law—indeed the responsibility of the second states and the second states are second to martial law—indeed the responsibility. people there got along for some time very well without any government at all except that of the law, without any one to execute it, and a more orderly and law-abiding people even then never lived on the face of the earth. You will see that the Bill, with the amendmenis finally passed by a strict party vote in both Houses, with a single exception. Very early this week I received an inkling of a probable wavering in that quarter, and referred to the matter in my letter published on Wednesday. Mr. Johnson certainly had the right to decide for himself what course he should adopt in respect to this or any other political question, always being responsible, however, to the judgment of his constituents. But he had a proper formally to assign the reason of the proper formally to assign the reason. when he sees proper formally to assign the reasons which actuate him, he certainly opens the may the Ohronicle say, "The present demoralized condition of the trade of the whole country appeals loudly to Congress for moderation and dispatch in the settlement of these momentous measures."

We may add that it appeals as loudly to the business classes of the North to take such steps as will overawe Congress into something like common sense.

Dan Rice on the Situation.

Dan Rice on the Situation.

Dan Rice on the Southern States, gives his opinions of some things he saw, in a letter to the Washington Republican, thusly:

The Freedmen's Bureau in South Carolina, under General Scott, is in good working order. The only trouble experienced arises where ill-disposed officers have crept into positions, and where speculators and claim agents of the old bounty-swindling order have tampered with the freedmen.

There is a set of traders in some districts who swindle the poor negroes shamefully by selling them bogus jewelry and gewgaws at most exorbitant prices. In some instances these pursons write for the Northern papers, and as it is for their interior of the months of the Monthern papers, and as it is for their interior of the Monthern papers, and as it is for their interior of the months o m obliged, therefore, to acquiesce in the decision am obliged, therefore, to acquiesce in the decision of the majority of Congress, however erroneous or unjust I may believe that decision to be, provided I believe that it will end in a comparatively short time in restoring the Southern States to the brotherhood of States." This, it must be confessed, is carrying the maxim that "the end justifies the means" to its extreme limit. But surely, if he felt "obliged to acquiesce in the decision of the majority," there was no necessity at all for his voting with them, since his vote was of no importance whatever either one way or the other. If, on the contrary, his vote had been decisive, immediately or prospectively, or could have had any conceivable weight in passing the bill and in thus, as he says he believes, relieving the country from its "perilous predicathus, as he says he ment," his speech might be accepted as a plausi-ble pretext for his vote (laying aside its morality). Nothing of this, however, is possible; and we must conclude, therefore, that other and very dif-ferent reasons than those assigned influenced this extraordinary action on the Senator's part, and extraordinary action on the Senator's part, and that its effect was designed to be felt in some assembly other than that of Congress. In brief terms, Mr. Johnson's vote, as such, was a mere nulity, and obviously designed more as the utterance of individual sentiment, designed to operate outside of the matter in halm, unan as becoming or excusable on the occasion upon which it was cast. The doctrine that it is obligatory upon a legislator to vote with the material pointy, on whatever ground, is convenient enough for such as desire to be always on the winning side. But it must be seen that it would not do to make it to its logical consequences, since it must push it to its logical consequences, since it must inevitably annihilate minorities altogether. On the whole, it would seem that the only intelligible ground advauced by Mr. Johnson for his vote for the bill was his inveterate and newly affirmed opposition to its provisions, general and particular, from the enacting clause to the last line of the

There is no longer a hope the affairs of this establishment are in a solvent condition. The mystery attached to the conduct of Mr. Valentine Wildman, the junior member, can be explained in no way save that he decamped from New York with all the funds of the bank within his reach. His mode of operation, so far as ascertained, was to draw from the banking houses of New York city all the moneys operation, so the assess of New York city all the moneys that remained in them to the credit of Brown & Wildman. This he had the ability to do restilly in Wildman. This he had the ability to do restilly in view of his presence there as a partner in the interests of his house, and possessing the entire confidence of Mr. P. Brown, the senior partner in this city. How far his operations extend, it is impossible now to determine, or if they go beyond the ruin of his own banking-house, and the loss thereby entailed upon its depositors. The confidence of parties in New York may have been abused, though it is yet to transpire if such is the confidence of parties in New York may have been abused, though it is yet to transpire if such is the case. A dispatch from that city states that Mr. Wildman left on the 12th instant for Atlanta via Charleston and Augusta. A dispatch from this city to Charleston, asking for information in regard to him, is answered that no one in that city has any knowledge of his presence there. The presumption, therefore, is that he has field the country, and in doing so gave false information to the party and in doing so gave false information to the party in New York, who telegraphed that he had left for home.—Allania Intelligencer.

Word was sent that he would call, by Shiers, but the latter left immediately, and the search instituted by the officers of the Bank was without result. A deofficers of the Bank was without result. A de omeers of the bank was without result. A description of his person, with a request to arrest him, was telegraphed to Goldsboro, and other points, and on yesterday a reply was sent by the Mayor of Goldsboro that he had been arrested. A warrant was issued, and an officer sent down to bring him up, and he reached here probably this morning.—Wumington Dispatch.

THE "TYDIANS NOT TAXED."-It seems strange to us, when we have reached that degree of civiliza-tion that we can teach all mankind what to do, that this should be so; but the New Englanders who go the West very shortly take as much pleas-ure in shooting Indians, as in former days they did in holding slaves at the South. In this they show that they are like their fathers. In Massa-chusetts in 1694 the colony paid fifty pounds for every Indian, great or small, that any person should kill. This was the uniform policy. In 1697 fifty pounds were to be paid for the scalps of adult Indians, and "for every child of the said enemy, under the age of ten years, that shall be by them slain, the sum of ten pounds; and such party or parties shall also have and keep unto their own use all plunder and prisoners by them taken of the enemy." show that they are like their fathers. In Massa

In the later laws, liberal premiums continued to be offered for the scalps of male Indians above the property of twelve years, as well as "the benefit of all ladian prisoners, being women and children under the age above said," subject only to the condition that they should be "transported out of the country"

This reads queerly to us; but we must remember that New England then engaged largely in stealing negroes in Africa to reduce them to slavery, and deemed it a virtue to shoot Indians wherever they could find them. Since these were the practices of our Christian fathers, whose memory we venerate, we might be a little more charitable in our judgment upon others. . [Newburyport (Mass.) Herald.

MECKLENBURG FEMALE COLLEGE, CHABLOTTE, N. C.—We are happy to say that this new Institution has commenced its first session with encouraging prospects. Quite a large number of pupils for the times have been matriculated, and the spacious halls of the establishment are filling up rapidly. We are glad to know that an able and accor plished corps of teachers are at their posts, and that the organization is likely soon to be completed. The following constitute the Faculty in part: Roy. A. G. Stacy, A. M. (late president of Daven-port Female College), President. J. L. Jones, A. M. (late president of the Masonic Female College, Ga.), Professor. Miss Mary T. Lee (graduate of Greensboro' Fe-

Miss Sue Anderson (graduate of Yorkville Fe male College), Instructress.

Miss Emma D. Bernheim (late teacher in the State Normal School, Charleston), Instructress. Professor Jones is from Georgia, and will be a nost valuable requisition to the College and to the community .- Charlotte Tims.

THE project of a Royal visit to Ireland in the the project of a royal visit to freland in the course of this year, is still under consideration. The Prince of Wales is, it is well known, anxious to have an Irish residence, and to spend at least as much of the year there as the Court ordinarily as much of the year there as the Court ordinarily does at Balmoral or Osborne; and the Princess, who has as yet seen only England and Scotland, is, it is whispered, almost inordinately anxious to see the third of her juture kingdoms, and imagines it must be rather like Denmark in its general aspect, are mere imitations, and should be avoided. Sold by all Druggists and Perfumers. Factory, No. 81 Barcley must be rather the Delmark in its general aspect, which, I daresay, about the Giant's Causeway it somewhat is. The interesting condition of her Royal Highness' health at present, forbids, of course, any immediate consideration of the procourse, any immediate consideration of the project. Then there come the Court duties of the season; the State visit of the Paris Exhibition, the State visit of the Czarowitch and his bride to Eng-land; but it is expected, and strongly hoped by the Government, that the Court of the Prince will the Government, that the Court of the Prince will be established in Ireland for some months of the autumn.—Halifax Express.

THE TRADE IN WORKS OF ART IN ROME.—The Giornale di Roma has the following: "It is calculated that the value of the modern and antique paintings and sculptures which last year were sent paintings and sculptures which last year were sent abroad was equal to 2,523,549f. This amount has been left in Rome by foreigners, not alone among artists, but generally in the hands of the population. Nor does it include the twenty per cent. paid the treasury on the sale of antiques, which are aways estimated below their real value. Last year exceeded the preceding in this traffic, as it produced 548,110f. more." Mr. Dickens gets £70 (about $350 in gold) a night for reading his last Christmas story. It is worth all that to read some parts of it, and he works all that to read some parts of it, and he works cheap at that price. Mr. Dickens' resorts to obtain money, now that his children are settled, are sometimes spoken of as degrading to a writer of his rank; but as respects his readings, it is not avarice but vanity that prompts them. He is a fine reader and an excellent actor, and it is very pleasant to him to hear the appliance that follows from
